Remote Working Webinar - Questions & Answers

Q1. I can dial from my deskphone even when it is logged out. The problem is that no recording happens from a logged out phone. Can we prevent users from using logged out phones?

The ability to dial out, without logging in is a safety feature - so you can always use the phones in an emergency. The call recordings do happen and are captured under an outbound call user. You can still search for these call recordings using date and time, but it will not show the user name - just an outbound call user.

Q2. Sometimes people working remotely have a log in status that says suspect. Does this mean that they have a bad wifi signal?

A suspect status (red initials in the call list) may mean that calls are not going through to the softphone. This can happen when someone is logged in remotely, but their screen has timed out/become inactive, so the system goes dormant. If this is something that happens regularly, please contact our support team so that they can investigate the issue for you.
